CONSUMPTION OF SUGAR NOW HEAVY DUE TO CANNING USES

World Markets Have General Buoyant Feeling

DEMAND GROWING

High Price Furore In U. S. Has Died Down

BY DAVID ARAKIE

This is the period of the heaviest consumption of sugar throughout the world. In America large quantities of sugar would be required to preserve the fruit crops of the country so as to avoid serious economic loss. It may be that this is one of the facts behind the recent buoyant feeling in the sugar markets of Cuba, Java and Japan. Cabled advices from these countries this week speak of a wave of buying. It might be added that the buying, which is brisk at this time of the year, has been very late this season as the weather has been abnormally unseasonable this year.

It is for that reason that the demand for refined sugar has been until this week very small. The refiners have been reluctant to buy raw sugar for future, but the heat wave that is reported in the eastern United States has caused a demand to spring up for both refined and raw sugars. On June 1 Cuban refined sugar was quoted at G.$6.25 per ton, c. and f. New York ex-duty, but it dropped in the middle of the month to G.$5 per ton. It has now risen to G.$6 per ton. The price of Java sugar has also gone up from 16⅝ guilders for forward cargo to 17⅝ guilders.

MARKET FIRM

The Shanghai market has a firm tendency as well, Japanese refined sugar being quoted at Tls. 10.30 per picul. Stocks of sugar in Shanghai are at present not standing at a high figure, being estimated at 50,000 bags of Japanese, 50,000 bags of Java, 130,000 bags of Hongkong and 130,000 bags of Philippines. There has been a notable decrease in the stocks of Japanese refined sugar, due principally to the boycott, which has prevented the Chinese dealers from supplementing their supplies.

The commodity has been moving very slowly into the interior owing to the unsettled state of the country, and, coupled with this, the approach of the Dragon Festival brought business entirely to a stop. It is expected that trade will revive very shortly in the Shanghai sugar market.

The furore over the high price of sugar has, to all appearances, died down in the United States. It is debatable how far the American Government has been successful in its effort to curb speculation in sugar, but it must be conceded that it has succeeded in arousing public sentiment in the country sufficient enough to arrest the movements of an important staple like sugar. The spectacular rise in the price of sugar had a sequel in the States that carried with it elements of great danger to "futures" trading in all commodities, but the Federal Courts did not uphold these injunctions and the general trade now breathes more freely in America.

After all, the law of demand and supply is paramount in all markets, and at the time of the wild boom in sugar the opinion was freely expressed that the supply was not equal to the demand. The statistics at the time made that clear. Still the boycott idea initiated by the womenfolk of the United States was in theory and practice much more intelligent than the bustling political pretense that tilts spectacularly at whirling windmills. In proportion to the success of the boycott will the consumption of sugar be reduced and the price affected.

"CORNERS" POSSIBLE

While it will be admitted that corners of commodities that have so often and constantly occurred in America constitute very serious disturbance to business, it cannot be said that the extinction of futures can protect the public against such corners being committed. But a futures market can only be in a healthy condition when it is conducted side by side with a large spot business, and in a center where stocks of the

Smiles from the Mixed Court

BY J. L. BUTTS

In a country where fishing is indulged in more in accordance with the regulations laid down by the late and justly revered Mr. I Walton, Kyang's actions doubtless never would have been questioned. In such lands it is quite the ordinary thing for a man to be seen hiking through the gray dawn toward the river bank with his rod on his shoulder, the time honored bait flask gently swelling his hip pocket, and a look of unquenchable hope in his eye. In China, however, such methods of angling are considered puerile and thus when a Chinese police constable patrolling the Dong Ka Loong saw Kyang Kwe-sung carrying a long, slender bamboo pole into an alleyway at 5 a.m. the thought never struck him that Kyang might be going fishing.

The constable thought that it was a curious sort of performance though and approached quietly to a point from which he could make out that Kyang's activities were directed toward the verandah of a house where washday had evidently transpired on the evening previous.

Before the C. P. C. could pursue the investigation any further the wielder of the bamboo happened to glance over his shoulder, hastily abandoned the pole and began rapidly to withdraw. The byeway through which he elected to retire, however, happened to have its exit and entrance located at the same end, and this was the one occupied by the policeman. Going leisurely about it, the C. P. C. cast round a bit and finally pulled Kyang out from behind the ashcan where he was nestling.

Kyang told the Court next morning that he had never come across such a suspicious person as this policeman, nor one who could put so twisted an interpretation on natural, everyday actions. He had been to the theater on the night in question and was returning to his home. Passing by an alleyway he saw a bamboo pole lying therein. Now the position of that pole, Kyang explained, was such that a person coming down the alleyway would most certainly trip over it, thereby doing himself damage. This thought so worked on his feelings that he turned back into the passage, picked up the impeding object and was placing it in an unobtrusive position against the wall of a house when this villainously-minded official descended upon him. Beyond this Kyang denied all knowledge of or association with the pole.

With a few brief strokes of the pen the Court fixed it so that Kyang will not be out late nights for at least a month, and after that he will have few attractions to keep him up till the morning hours, since he then will have taken up residence in the suburbs.

FASHION NOTE

Police Constable Carpenter is the lad with the incredulous and boring eye for you. Passing along North Soochow Road Tuesday afternoon he noted that the plumage of Zung Kyau-zien, who chanced to be perched on a packing case near a landing stage, was somehow all awry and out of line. Now a lofty degree of sartorial elegance is not demanded nor even common among the loiterers along the Soochow Creek waterfront, but Zung's appearance struck the officer as being so utterly outre as to call for attention. Inquiry developed that the bumps and flounces in the costume under regard were occasioned by 12 large chunks of raw opium with which the wearer had padded his waistline.

Yesterday Zung stood up in the Mixed Court and invoked the shades of all his forbears to all his forbears to stand witness

Peking Announces Plan To Protect Rail Lines; Powers O.K. British Stand

U. S. May Propose Even Stiffer Terms For Guarding Interests Of Foreign Residents In China

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 27.—The Diplomatic Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says that several European Powers have already notified London of their approval of the British proposals for better protection of foreigners in China. The State Department at Washington, where the matter is still being considered, may suggest amendments tending to reinforce the British proposals. It is probable that Tokio will adopt a similar course of procedure.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 24.—The following statement of precautionary measures adopted by the Tientsin-Pukow Railway administration for the protection of the Railway has been handed to Reuter's Agency by the Ministry of Communications:

1.—Special police patrols are to be stationed in the principal trackmen's huts so that they can make nightly inspection of the line. Suitable points between two connecting stations are to be selected so that police patrols from these two stations can meet and exchange their checking cards with each other.

2.—Regulations governing the night duties of the police patrols at the stations are to be promulgated so that the patrols may attend to their duties in good order by turn.

3.—Officers of the patrols are to make personal inspection trips from time to time and to see that the patrols are performing their duties as faithfully as possible.

4.—All platforms of passenger cars on both the Special Express and Mail Trains are to be guarded by efficient armed policemen in turn.

5.—Special Guard Cars are to be provided for any emergency use called for by local military authorities concerned in connection with protection of travellers.

6.—All passenger trains are now running through the provinces of Kiangsu, Anhui, and Shantung during day time. For the sake of avoiding possible danger, the method of sending a patrolling train ahead of regular trains might be adopted when day light is shortened in winter time.

7.—Efficient and experienced railway police are to be picked and assigned to various points between Tsangchow and Pengpu. In civilian clothes, they are to inspect the country along the railway for any possible information regarding the whereabouts of bandits. Upon finding such information, they are to report both to the local military authorities concerned and to the Railway Administration for action.

8.—Local villagers are to be employed as assistant scouts for the Railway.

9.—The following troops are to be held responsible for the safety of travelling for various localities. The twenty-third and twenty-sixth Divisions are responsible for the section between Techow and Hingtsi and Tientsin; the Tungkuang Gendarmerie for Tungkuang Station, the 89th Regiment for the section between Tungkuang and Tehhsien, the 90th Regiment for the section between Tungkuang and Hingtsi. Heavy guards are to be stationed at Hingtsi, Tsanghsien, Nanpi and Wuchiao. For Chihli and Chuanho, there will be one company of soldiers stationed there. For the 16 stations including Yaokuantun, Fengchiaokow, Lienchen and Anling, one secret military detective will be assigned for duty.

10.—Besides the seven articles concerning the protection of travelling as promulgated by the order of Tuchun Tien, the protection for the railway within the province of Shantung is to be divided into three sections as follows: From Techoy to Sangtsetien, to be guarded by the 7th Brigade, from Lokow to Wutsun, to be guarded by the 8th Division, from Chufou to Hanchuang to be guarded by the force under command of Military Commissioner of Yenchow and Yenchow Defence Guard. Special Military forces are to be stationed at Yenchow and Hanchuang to offer protection to the railway in time of emergency.

11.—For the province of Anhui the various military units now stationed at respective points are to be requested to give cooperation for the protection of the railway. Until the time schedule is changed in such a way that the passenger trains pass all principal stations within the province during day time, soldiers are to be put on duty at various stations or on different trains for the protection of the railway.

12.—For the province of Kiangsu, the Military Commissioner of Nanking is to be responsible for the section between Pukow and Huachiying, and the Military Commissioner of Hsuchow and Haichow is to be responsible for the section between Chiakou and Likouyi. While running between Hsuchow and Lincheng, one special car is to be attached to both Special Express and Mail Trains, up and down, at the disposal of the latter Commissioner so that he can despatch

COUNCIL REFUSES TO CANCEL NEW FOOD REGULATION

States Licensing Of Vendors Works No Hardship; Is Health Measure

The petition of Chinese bodies for the withdrawal of the recently promulgated Municipal regulation licensing Chinese food vendors has been refused by the Council after due consideration, according to correspondence published in today's Municipal Gazette.

In stating the decision the chairman of the Council comments that similar allegations of hardship are put forward every time the Municipality imposes a levy of any nature and reiterates that the Council is at all times ready to consider individual complaints and makes it its consistent policy to avoid inflicting hardship on any law-abiding Chinese resident of the Settlement.

Following is the translation of a letter from the Commissioner for Foreign Affairs transmitted to the Council by the Senior Consul May 24, and the reply of the Chairman, dated June 23:

Sir.—In continuation of my previous note transmitting a communication from the Shanghai Chinese General Chamber of Commerce requesting the withdrawal of the measure passed for the licensing of food vendors in the interests of sanitation, I have the honor to inform you that I have received a further letter from the Chamber to the following effect:

"This Chamber has received a petition from the leaders of the Southern Sundry Goods Trade Union stating that the licensing of food vendors and the 19 conditions which the Municipal Council are about to put into effect will not only impose a financial burden upon the vendors in question beyond their capacity, but also, since the conditions are provoking and harsh, they would, if put into effect, place the dealers in a position where they could not move a finger without committing an offence. For instance the inspection of the interiors of shops by officials and the requirements of living rooms among other things would be irritating to and hard on dealers in foodstuffs.

"We have the honor to suggest that you will approach the Consular Body with a view to having the licensing measure in question held up by the Municipal Council in order to alleviate the position of traders with small capital."

While I fully appreciate the intention of the Municipal Council who, in introducing this licensing system, really desire to promote the public health in view of the impending summer, nevertheless, seeing as I do the hardships and difficulties enumerated above, I have the honor to request that you will take into consideration the arguments set forth in the present and previous

3 FORBIDDEN CITY PALACES BURN, COSTLY RELICS LOST

Boy Emperor's Home Destroyed As He Looks On

STUPID GUARDS

Fire Brigades Denied Entrance Until Too Late

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 27.—A fire broke out at midnight in the ex-Emperor's private apartments at the Forbidden City. The damage done was very serious, and the beautiful apartments were completely gutted.

The ex-Emperor was apparently himself the first to discover the flames, but strenuous efforts both by Chinese and foreigners failed to save the ancient structure from destruction.

It is believed that there were no casualties.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 27.—Three famous palaces known as Chungchengtien, Chienfukung and Yenchunkeh were among those destroyed by the fire within the Forbidden City. Many priceless works of art were lost while portraits of the Emperors and other treasures which are irreplaceable were destroyed.

According to very reliable reports the ex-Emperor himself was the first to give the alarm about midnight. Partly through fear of rioting and partly because no orders were given by their superior officers, the Palace Guards refused to allow the Chinese and foreign fire brigades to enter. However, after prolonged consultation brigades of police and gendarmerie were admitted but by this time several buildings had been gutted. The Italian fire brigade did good work and through its efforts the conflagration was extinguished. The fire burned practically all night. Its spread was prevented by cutting down trees and demolishing smaller buildings.

The ex-Emperor watched the fire throughout the night. The origin of the fire is attributed to defective electric wiring. Altogether 120 chien were destroyed. There were no casualties.

The Minkuo University, located in the old palace of Prince Chun in West City known as the Yinan Palace, was completely burned last night.

A third fire partially destroyed a large temple outside Chowyangmen containing the remains of Duke Hai of the Manchu Household and the coffins of other important personages. It is understood that lawsuits will be brought against the priest by the relatives of the deceased.

MILLERAND, AT PRESS LUNCHEON, DEFENDS STAND

Says France Resorted To Force Only After Persuasion Failed

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, June 2[illegible].—The Foreign Press Association gave a lunch[illegible] today at the Hotel d'Orsay in honor of President Millerand. Mr. Sisley Huddleston, Chairman of the Anglo-American Press, in his speech thanking the President for his presence, gave some of his reminiscences.

In the course of his speech he said: "The bells continue to ring the Matins. In France, like so many other countries, appears to us sometimes submerged in difficulties, we still see her magnificent beffries, we still hear their song of heroism and hope."

M. Millerand, replying, pointed out how difficult it was sometimes to know the truth. "When after three years of vain negotiations France decided, in agreement with her Belgian friends, to change her method and to apply constraint instead of the persuasion in which she had failed, is it indispensable in order to understand her actions to seek for unavowable ulterior motives, can it not be admitted that a nation has the right to claim its due? You who live amongst us know well that the spirit of hatred and revenge is far from us."

Williams College Graduation To Be Held Tomorrow

Powell of The Weekly Review who has been one of the outstanding figures in the recent Lincheng affair.

William's College is a private institution only three years of age, established with the object of preparing students for college education in America and Europe, as well as in institutions of higher learning in China, and it has now an enrolment of 506 students. There are only two departments for the present—The High School Department which will now graduate the first group of seventeen students, and the Preparatory Department which will give graduation certificates for the sixth semester to seventy-three pupils that have finished the course.

SOLONS INVITED BY GEN. LU TO SIT IN HANGCHOW

Peking Hears That Chekiang Director Has Reserved Temple For Meeting

Peking, June 26.—A report from Tientsin states that General Lu Yung-hsiang, part of the Rehabilitation of Chekiang, has sent Mr. Ting Ming-cha there to invite the legislators to proceed to Hanchow. The report adds that General Lu has reserved the Ling Yin Temple for the accommodation of the Parliamentarians.

The current reports regarding the alleged activities of General Tuan Chi-jui in connection with the political crisis are untrue. General Tuan's intimate circles declare that the time has not yet come for him again to become active politically.

Dr. John Ferguson, Advisor to the Government, in an interview with Mr. Kao Ling-wei, Minister of Interior, yesterday, stated that the assumption of the President's duties by a three-Minister Cabinet could never be recognised by the Powers. He suggested that the Vice-Ministers of the different portfolios should be appointed Acting Ministers in case the Ministers were absent or refused to assume office.

STILL THEY ACT

The three Cabinet Ministers, however, decided at today's meeting each to take charge of an additional Ministry concurrently.

Mandates will shortly be issued, dismissing Messrs. Li Ken-yuan and Peng Yun-yi Ministers of Agriculture and Commerce and Education respectively, who are at Tientsin. Mr. Li, it will be recalled, was appointed Acting Premier by President Li Yuan-hung after his arrival at Tientsin.

Mr. Chang Ying-hua, Minister of Finance, is coquetting with his post, tendering his resignation one day and withdrawing it another. Latest report has it that Mr. Chang, discouraged by the hitch in the negotiations with the Crisp Group for a £10,000,000, has again resigned. Mr. Kao Ling-wei has requested Mr. Panfu, former Minister of Finance, to exhort Mr. Chang to help tide the Government over the present crisis.

LLOYD GEORGE ASKS BRITAIN TO BE PATIENT ON RUM ISSUE

Former Premier, In Speech, Asks Forbearance

AN "EXPERIMENT"

Says Laws Will be Changed If They Are Unworkable

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

London, June 27.—Lloyd George in a speech delivered at the Wilson Baptist Church said he hoped sincerely that Great Britain would not get excited over the seizure of liquor on British ships in New York.

It was not a question of whether the British believed in prohibition or not, Lloyd George said. The United States was making a bold experiment in dealing with the greatest problem of modern civilisation and it would be only fair and just for the British to give the ideal expressed a fair chance before denouncing it as a failure.

The Americans are level-headed, Lloyd George said, and if they find that the present laws are impracticable they will change them without foreign meddling.

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

New York, June 27.—Four large trans-Atlantic passenger steamers—two British, one French and one Italian—arrived here today with large quantities of liquor under seal.

BRITAIN PLANS BIG ADDITION TO AERO DEFENCES

Force Will Be Large Enough To Resist Strongest Opponent

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 26.—In the House of Commons today Mr. Stanley Baldwin announced that the Government had decided that in addition to meeting the essential air power requirements of the Navy and Army, and Indian and oversea commitments, British air power must include a home defence Air Force of sufficient strenth adequately to protect the country against an air attack by the strongest Air Force within striking distance of England. In the first instance, the home defence force would consist of 52 squadrons to be created as soon as possible.

The preliminary steps were being taken forthwith. The result would be to add 34 squadrons to the authorised strength of the Air Force.

Prior to further development, the Premier continued, the question would again be examined in the light of the then existing air strength of foreign powers.

The Government would gladly co-operate with other Powers in limiting air armaments, similar to the Washington Treaty.

The expenditure this year would not exceed £500,000 and the advance expenditure would not exceed £5,500,000.

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 26.—The Secretary of State for Air, Sir Samuel Hoare, presiding at a dinner tonight in honor of the foreign delegates to the International Air Navigation Commission, emphasised that the Government's decision to increase the Air Force did not constitute a menace to any other country. The Government did not contemplate any likelihood of war or danger attack. The move was dictated solely by reasons of national defence.

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 27.—The fact that all parties are beginning to awaken to the grave risks of the position as regards the air is exemplified by the comments of the morning papers on the announcement of the increase in the Air Force. Papers of every shade of political opinion approve the principle of the scheme.

It is declared that the case for a large increase is unanswerable and that the Government has only done what was to be expected. Nevertheless, fear is generally expressed of embarking on a new competition in armaments. It is hoped that means for limitation of Air Forces can be found in a pact among the Powers, similar to the Washington Naval Agreement.

It is admitted that France is at present setting the pace, but it is argued that she cannot disarm until the reparation question has been settled and her security assured and Britain should do her utmost to achieve this result. It is urged in one quarter that the increase in the Air Force should make possible a decrease in the defensive forces on land and sea and that a start might be made with Singapore.

soldiers to protect the railway as adequately as possible.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 24.—The following statement of measures taken for the general protection of the Line by the Peking-Hankow Railway Administration has been handed to Reuter's Agency by the Ministry of Communications:

A.—General protection for the line:

1. To order all trackmen of the line not to leave their huts without permission but to organise themselves into groups to inspect by turn the rails and bridges of the line as carefully as possible.

2. To instruct all men belonging to the Railway Police Force to keep a constant inspection of the line, by groups, 5 kilometres each way from their respective stations.

3. To select 140 Special Travelling Police to be commanded by 4 officers and accompanied by 8 men handling signals with special armored cars to accommodate them so that groups of this Force can be despatched from place to place for inspection work, the armored cars to be attached to the trains.

B.—Constant watch for the whereabouts of the bandits:

1. To employ a special Secret Service Force to be stationed at various points of the line so that they can be on constant watch for the whereabouts of the bandits, if any, and to report the same to local military authorities for action.

2. To request the local civil authorities along the line to encourage the co-operation of the public in locating the whereabouts of the bandits and in reporting the same either to the respective civil authorities or to the military commanders of respective places or to the respective railway stations concerned so that defence or suppression measures can be prepared in time. (This measure has already been taken up).

3.—To instruct the railway police of all stations to inspect both ways of the line during the night, the men of one station are to meet the men of the other station and to exchange the checking cards of their respective stations as evidence of execution of their duties—in such a way all sections of the line can be inspected every night.

C.—Devices safeguarding the running of trains:

1.—To provide patrolling trains, consisting of one or two cars, to run between Yenching and Kwang-hsui stations, preceding the regular trains, in order to find out whether there is any danger ahead of the line. These patrolling trains upon arrival at each station and upon finding no danger in the way are to report back to the previous station passed so that the regular trains can follow up or down.

2.—To change the present time table governing all trains in such a way that they would pass the so-called bandit-ridden country in day time.

D.—Special protection for travellers:

1.—To assign 20 armed policemen commanded by one officer for every train to protect the life and property of the passengers section by section.

2.—To provide a special armored car to be attached to each Special Express Train, up and down, in which there will be 4 squads of armed policemen under the control of 4 officers equipped with machine-guns.

E.—Co-operation of locally stationed soldiers is to be employed:

1.—To request all military authorities of the various provinces along the railway to give their co-operation in all defence measures against any possible bandit outrages. (This measure has already been taken up).

2.—To divide the railway line in the province of Honan into the following sections to be under the special care of the various military commanders. From Shunteh to Chihsien, to be patrolled by Shensi troops under General Wu; from Chihsien to Hsinhsiang, by the Brigade under the command of General Ma; from Hsinhsiang to Chengchow, by the Brigade commanded by General Soo; from Chengchow to Wushen Pass, by the 14th Division; all other sections of the line have also been assigned to be patrolled by the respective units of troops stationed there.

British Labor Turns Down Reds

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 26.—At the annual conference of the Labor Party in London, which opened today, a resolution in favor of affiliation with the Communist Party was defeated by a card vote of 2,885,000 to 366,000.

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 26.—The annual Labor Party Conference opened today at Queen's Hall. It was attended by a record number of 900 delegates. Mr. Sidney Webb, M. P., presided.

A feature of the discussion which resulted in the rejection of the Communist Party's application for affiliation, which was opposed by the Executive and supported by the Barrow Labor Party, was a speech by Mr. Frank Hodges, Secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, who declared that affiliation would be madness. Russia had nothing to teach the political democracy of Europe. The power inherent in British political institutions was unlimited. The British Labor Party abhorred the element of dictatorship.

Ivan Bankoff, Dancer, Opens At Apollo Tonight

Ivan Bankoff, the dancer whose company opens tonight at the Apollo theater, promises to show Shanghai something entirely new and extraordinary. In fact, he promises to make the town gasp with astonishment.

Mr. Bankoff, who was in Shanghai some five years ago, will be remembered by many residents for the series of entertainments he gave then. He formerly danced at the Moscow Art theater, and both in Europe and America he has a great reputation.

He is ably supported by a strong company, including Miss Beth Cannon, who also enjoys a great reputation in America. Miss Cannon is one of the hardest working as well as most talented interpreters of classical dancing on the present day stage, and even when traveling she keeps up the hard work that won her great success. Her numbers are particularly difficult and she estimates that she goes through with more real physical exertion in one day than the average young woman does in a month.

Mr. Bankoff and his company are at present touring the world, and arrived here recently from Japan, having previously been in America, where they scored a tremendous success. After the engagement here the company will proceed to Hongkong, Manila and then later to India.

Mr. Bankoff has a competent and well drilled company with him, and has a program that is entirely different from the usual classical dance entertainment.

BODY FORMED TO PREPARE FOR END OF CHILD LABOR

Education Of Parents And Children Aim Of New Committee

The Christian people of Shanghai are showing immense interest in the recent move on the part of the Ewo Mills which abolishes child labor in their factories beginning September 1. In this connection a Local Committee on Industrial Relationships has been appointed by the various organisations at work in Shanghai, such as the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A., the Pastors' Association and the Missionary Association. Mr. James M. Yard is chairman of this Local Committee.

At a recent meeting of this Committee on Industrial Relations plans were made to prepare the workers for this great innovation which the abolition of child labor will mean. The parents must be educated in order that they may understand this new move on the part of the employers. There is great danger that they will resent this move and reply by strikes and other methods.

The Committee is very anxious that this first experiment in industrial reform shall be a complete success. Doctors and nurses have been secured who will give lectures to all the workers. They will also meet the "number one" men in various conferences.

Another sub-committee under the leadership of Dr. R. Y. Lo is preparing articles for the Chinese papers, and posters and placards to be put up in the vicinity of the mills.

Arrangements are also being made by this committee co-operating with the Yangtszepoo Social Center for part time schools for the children who will thus be thrown out of employment.

It is hoped that the various factory owners and the Municipal Council will co-operate in helping to provide teachers and apparatus for these schools. It is understood that the Municipal Council is already considering this problem, for it is an acknowledged principle in all civilised countries that it is the business of the government to provide at least primary education for all children living under the jurisdiction of that government.

This Local Committee on Industrial Relationships is working in close harmony with the committee appointed by the recent meeting of the National Christian Council, of which Dr. Charles E Patton is the chairman. It is hoped that during the next year one of the secretaries of the National Christian Council will be set apart to give full time to the study of industrial conditions.

The Dog Watch

By Westa

"WHAT," I asked Jimmie, "is the most numerous thing in the world?"

The Mixed Court Smiler, who unfortunately had left his abacus at home, went through a series of digital convolutions rapidly and then replied: "Well, I figure there's a considerable number of dewdrops in the Pacific ocean."

Wrong!

"What," I asked Larry, the Chin Chiner, "is the most numerous thing in the world?"

"You may take it from me, not, straight and undiluted," he replied, "that there's a flock of shroffs in Shanghai."

Wrong! Both dead wrong!

The most numerous thing in the world, with the largest number of earnest and emphatic witnesses to offer willing certification of the total, is the aggregate of wrong numbers in the telephone book. Greater is this total than all the sons of the patriarchs, from Adam down to Noah; greater also than the total of Solomon's wives, or Methuselah's years, or the woes of Job.

Ask any subscriber.

AND yet, the reason therefor lies neither with the gent who printed that useful but deceptive volume, nor yet with the telephone company; despite the universal inclination to put the blame on the young men (assisted and supervised by the young women) who sit at the switchboards day after day and night after night with what a large proportion of the world's telephone using population is convinced is a wholy devilish determination to do everything in their power to defeat the honest and innocent efforts of their customers to obtain a proper connection, or to keep it any length of time if by some lucky oversight on their part the right wires happen to form a circuit over which an uninterrupted conversation may be carried on.

The reason, Mr. Grouch and Missy Peeve, does not lie with them, but with you and me. They strive every day to weed the wrong numbers out of the book, and every day we try our durndest, and with what is to them a disheartening degree of success, to keep them in.

You are considerably more of an offender than I am, for the reason that I happened to learn, some years ago and wholly by accident, how to use a telephone. Since then I have had less trouble with telephones, probably, than anybody in the world, and can truthfully say that my telephone book is as free from wrong numbers as a goose is from ideas.

ONE night, while travelling from Dayton, Ohio, to Washington I stopped off at Cincinnati to call upon the Cincinnati manager of the Associated Press, an old friend. Arriving there, we sat in the front office talking, when suddenly somebody in a back room started to sing the weirdest, craziest, most disconnected song I had ever heard. I waited a few minutes, thinking the manager would go back and bust a chair over the singer's head, but as the voice continued without seeming to perturb my friend I finally asked him how Caruso's rival had broken into his office and why he didn't step back there and put him out of his misery.

"He's not in any misery;" my friend said, "he's reading the news."

"Reading the news?"

"Sure, come with me and I'll explain."

IN the back office we found a young chap sitting at a telephone switchboard with a receiver strapped over his head and bundle of telegrams in front of him. And listening closely I discovered that he was "singing" the telegrams into the telephone transmitter.

"There are eleven towns on that telephone circuit," my friend said. Some of them are near here; some are fifty or sixty miles away, and in each town somebody is listening to this bird and writing down everything he says."

I made a mental note that they probably were the best listeners that the world had ever produced.

"For a long time," my friend said, "we had endless trouble in getting this news out, due to constant interruptions. Every few words somebody would 'break in,' as we called it, to ask that the last word or sentence be repeated. Then one night one of the boys discovered by accident that by 'singing' the news they could all hear him better. So now he 'sings' it all the time, and sometimes he goes for a week without a single interruption."

THE explanation is simple. By "singing" the news he put each word, and of the long words each syllable in a different pitch, with the result that it was isolated so to speak, in the general flow of words, thus enabling the auditors to catch and identify each word separately. By "singing" the words he broke them up, so to speak, and made them sound to the various listeners about as they look when printed thus:

now is the time for all good men to come to the support of their party

"THE next time you ask Central for a telephone number," my friend suggested, "sing your number to her, and it's a million to one she'll give you the right one. Telephone girls are the most romantic persons in the world, and I've found that a little singing will do more to induce them to give you the right number than all the cussing out that could be shot at them by all the dock wallopers on the Ohio river."

AND he was right. Ever since, when I have wanted a number, instead of asking for it in a monotone, with the name of the exchange and all the numbers in the same tone, or pitch of voice, thus:

Central 1433

I have "sung" it, thus:

Cen tral 1 4 3 3

and despite the fact that as a singer I am a close rival of the hoarsest, most raucous voiced tomcat in the Far East, I seldom fail to charm them right off their perches and cause them to hand me what in many homes and offices is considered the world's greatest rarity, the right telephone number.

AIR SURVEY

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, June 26.—Mr. John. W. Weeks, the Secretary of War, has authorised a survey of a round-the-world air route as a preliminary to an official world flight.

Fire Brigade Report For May

The total number of calls received was 27 of which 29 were genuine fires, 24 occurring within the Settlement including 1 chimney fire, and the Brigade attending 5 outside. The remaining 8 were either false alarms or else not traced. The damage on assessed property within the Settlement was estimated at Tls. 10,995, while the property at risk was estimated at Tls. 104,020. Seven houses were destroyed and 7 damaged, 18 lives were lost and one other person injured. Machines travelled approximately 222 miles. Hose used amounted to 7,225 feet and the time occupied was approximately 179 hours.

May 13, 2.52 a.m., H58 Lungmen Road (Cigarette Shop).—Late call received. Not only the above premises, where the fire originated, but also Nos. 59, 60, 33A and 34A were a mass of flames and the fire spreading in all directions. The French Brigade were the first in operation owing to the proximity of their Watch Tower. The Sinza Division, who arrived quickly after, found considerable difficulty owing to the scarcity of hydrants and it was not until after a united hard fight, in which a section of the Central Division assisted, having responded to a District Call, that the fire was got under control and finally extinguished. During the latter part of the operations it was reported that people were missing. A search was at once made and gradually 17 bodies were recovered.

The cause of the fire is unknown but its fierceness and extent was undoubtedly assisted by the excessive amount of kerosene kept in stock, being far above the quantity allowed by the Regulations and it is fortunate that the fire was held where it was as a Chinese general shop (partly burned) was also found to contain an excessive amount of kerosene. In this case action was taken and the proprietor fined at the Mixed Court. Seventeen lives were lost, seven houses destroyed and four damaged.

M. W. PETT,
Chief Officer.

communication and request the Municipal Council to withdraw the measure in question as a sign of their sympathy with the difficulties of the dealers.

I have the honor to request the favor of a reply.

I am, etc.,
Hsu Yuan,
Commissioner for Foreign Affairs.

COUNCIL'S REPLY

Sir,—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of May 15, and 31, transmitting communications from the Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, on the subject of protests by the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce regarding licensing of food shops in the Settlement.

In reply I am directed to state that such food shops were at one time licensed by the Health Office without charge, but that owing to the cost of supervision a fee of $2 per quarter is now levied.

The various statements of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce are noted, and after giving due consideration to the arguments set forth in support of the request for the withdrawal of the measure passed for the licensing of food vendors, the Council is satisfied that in levying $2 per quarter no undue burden is being imposed.

As regards the statement contained in the later letter, that the conditions of the licence are too onerous, I need only remark that this and similar allegations are made whenever a levy of any nature whatsoever is imposed, and invariably without cause or justification, and I need only repeat that I have before reiterated in previous despatches, that the Council at all times is ready to consider any individual complaint since it is its consistent policy to avoid infliction of hardship of any kind upon the law-abiding Chinese residents in this foreign settlement.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,
H. G. Simms,
Chairman.

Paris, June 26.—The Paris-London cross-rate is quoted today at: £1=75.28 francs.

Consumption Of Sugar Is Heavy

commodity are warehoused or, at any rate, accessible.

It is characteristic of American commodity exchanges that they are the centers of periodical outbursts of violent speculation. The ethics of permitting trading in future options in the case of food products generally or in cotton or other essentials might perhaps be challenged and the usefulness of an Exchange in the scheme of stabilising prices and the orderly marketing of a product may be debatable. Many forceful arguments could, no doubt, be advanced both pro and con, but we are content here with having just touched the fringe of this problem.

THE TARIFF

Tht question of the adequacy or inadequacy of the present tariff rate on sugar, based upon the difference in the cost of production under the flexible provisions of the tariff act of last year, is being investigated by the Tariff Commission and must involve careful and extensive examination. It is the more perplexing to read that President Harding should be reported to have made a declaration that he had decided not to lower the duty on sugar imported into the United States. An exclusive despatch carried by THE CHINA PRESS this week to the effect that this announcement has no reference to the investigation being conducted by the Commission raises the hope that the President might very likely be influenced by the recommendations of the Tariff Commission, as the investigation was undertaken with his hearty approval. With reduced supplies of sugar throughout the world, curtailment of consumption along reasonable lines is obviously necessary.

Lord Hawke Confident All's Well With King Cricket

BY LORD HAWKE

If there are those who believe that cricket is in danger of losing its position as the paramount sport of Britain, I certainly am not of the number. My view most emphatically is, and I state it without equivocation, that cricket today is as popular as ever it was. Expressing so decided an opinion, I am writing chiefly of what I know to be a fact in regard to my own county of Yorkshire, with which I have had a very intimate connection all my life and whose eleven I had the honor of captaining for the record period of twenty-eight years. And from what I know of other counties, the same is true in their cases also. For the popularity of cricket in Yorkshire a great deal is due to that magnificent secretary and splendid organiser, Mr. F. C. Toone, who ever since he took office has worked heart and soul for the game. If there were more secretaries like him I venture to think that we should hear precious little loose talk about cricket's popularity being on the wane.

By the end of April this year no fewer than 2,800 out of more than 5,000 members of the Yorkshire County Club had paid their subscriptions.

Acting on the principle that a Yorkshireman always like to receive something before he gives anything, we make a practice of sending out the tickets to all members before the opening of the season and before the subscriptions are paid. Then when each subscription is received the member is sent the Yorkshire Cricket Annual, giving the whole of the records and much other useful information regarding the history of the game in the county.

And what can make pleasanter reading for a Yorkshireman than the records of those three most wonderful years, 1900, 1901, and 1902, when out of some 80 matches Yorkshire lost only two, one in each of the two last-named years, and both, curiously enough, to Somerset?

In my view there is no occasion for despondency because Australia, chiefly by the aid of two fine fast bowlers—something which we lacked—triumphed in the last Test matches held in this country. Our fast bowlers, I make no doubt, will come along in due course, and then I have little fear that we shall become top-dog again.

Apart from the absence of fast bowlers of real merit, our trouble at the moment appears to be a growing dislike to stand up to fast bowling, especially when, as not infrequently happens, the fast bowler is out to frighten the batsman. This may possibly be due in large measure to the fact that our batsmen obtain so little experience of real fast bowling nowadays that when they come to meet it they are somewhat nonplussed, and instead of going out to attack it are content to act almost entirely on the defensive.

In regard to the charge that we are wont to rely too much upon veteran cricketers, it has to be remembered that the youngsters of promise are very scarce just now, and, when discovered, need considerable experience before they are fit to engage in international encounters.

It is for this reason that I cordially welcome the institution of trial matches, though I think that the Board of Control would have been better advised had they adopted the Rugby football procedure and played the prospective England team against the North, the South, and the Rest instead of having two matches—North v. South—as at present arranged. These latter matches are, I am afraid, little likely to achieve what the Board have in view—namely, the building up of the strongest side that the Mother-country can put into the field.

The players in these matches, having regard to the fact that the England team will not be chosen until next year, cannot be expected to put the enthusiasm into the game that they otherwise would.

It seems to me to be a great pity to disturb a domestic season of county cricket by the introduction of these matches. Better results, so far as the building up of an England team is concerned, could have been obtained, I fancy, if selectors had been chosen who could have gone round and watched the form in county matches, where every man is seen at his keenest and best, in much the same way as the Rugby Union selectors do.

HOBBS, SURREY CRICKETER, GETS 100TH CENTURY

Still Quite A Distance From W. G. Grace's Mark Of 126

Thus early in the cricket season we have to record the achievement of a memorable distinction. J. B. Hobbs, the Surrey cricketer, by scoring a century against Somerset a county against which he had never previously reached three figures, registered his 100th century in first-class cricket. Only two cricketers have exceeded this record—W. G. Grace, who made 126 hundreds, and Tom Hayward, whose total was 104. Hobbs first appeared for Surrey in May, 1905, and in his opening championship match—having previously played for the county against Gentlemen of England—he scored 28 and 155. In the course of his great career he has made centuries in Test matches in England, Australia, and South Africa, and in the season of 1919, for Players against Gentlemen, he made 120 not out at the Oval, 113 at Lord's, and 116 at Scarborough. The appended list shows the number of three figure innings played by Hobbs each year since 1905:—

Year.	No. of centuries.	Year.	No of centuries
1905	2	1913	14
1906	4	1914	11
1907	6	1919	8
1908	6	1920	16
1909	8	1921	1
1910	3	1922	10
1911	7	1923	1
1912	3

He was not-out on 17 occasions. Up to the present time Hobbs has played 817 innings and has scored 34 578 runs. He has made 70 centuries when playing for Surrey, seven for England, 11 for the M.C.C., five for representative teams, and seven in the matches Players v. Gentlemen.

LAWN BOWLERS MAY SEND TEAM TO PLAY H'KONG

Bad Weather Interferes With Championship Rounds

The Shanghai Lawn Bowls Association has received an invitation to send an Interport team to Hongkong about the middle of September.

Progress has been made in the initial rounds of the Shanghai Championships since last week, but there are several matches which are behind in the first round, thus holding back competitors who are waiting to play the second round. There is only one week more in which to play off both rounds, when defaulters will be scratched. The matches played during last week were:—

Singles:—J. Wheeler beat C. W. Porter, S. Marks beat J. Keefe, N. Harrison beat S. Marks (second round,) G. Ackerman beat B. Anderton, C. Amner beat J. Shaw, T. Main beat A. E. Hayward, G. Johnston beat W. A. Turnbull, J. R. Milligan beat S. Wallace.

Pairs:—G. Ackerman and J. Wheeler beat G. Johnston and J. E. Harvey; F. Large and J. Irvine beat J. Tomlinson and R. Peden; S. Marks and T. Veitch beat D. McDonald and P. M. Scott; N. Oakes and S. "Tea For Three"

"Tea For Three" is a very delightful comedy and it has proved to be a big success wherever it has been played, but something went wrong with the show last night when it was presented by the Frawley Company at the Lyceum Theater.

The whole plot is carried by three people. Miss Blood is the lady, Tim Frawley the jealous husband, and Herbert Light the friend. Miss Blood gave a particularly fine portrayal of the wife. She was gowned to perfection and she looked beautiful. I don't wonder at the "Friend's" infatuation. Tim Frawley was as usual most effective but it was that accomplished actor Herbert Light that seemed to be the erring player as well as the erring friend. He had a tremendously long part. I understand that, line for line, it is longer than the part of Hamlet. We must recognise that these good players are playing different parts nightly and that must be the excuse for Light's obvious fluffing. It was a pity since the play is one of those in the first class. The dialogue is sparkling and all the situations compelling and at times amusing.

Tonight the company will play "Anna Christie." It is the piece that aroused any amount of criticism here some months ago. It has captured London since and it has been received well right through the tour. It is strong in line and action. It is drama. It supplies some wonderfully faithful portraits. It is well worth seeing.

Smith's Decision May Make History

"TO sign or not to sign?" That was the question which confronted Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, following the close of the lengthy debate between "wet" and "dry" forces gathered for the public hearing at Albany on the measure, sponsored by Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier and passed by the Legislature, repealing the State prohibition enforcement law, enacted through the efforts of Senator J. B. Mullen and Assemblyman B. P. Gage, of New York. The Governor signed. On his history-making action may hinge the fate of prohibition enforcement throughout the land.

Surplus War Material Of U.S. Not To Be Sold To Foreign Powers

No American guns, weapons, or other war material is to be sold to any foreign power; nor may any such material be sold to any American citizen, unless he gives guarantees that such supplies are not to be transferred to any foreign power. This is President Harding's special contribution to the campaign to discourage war; true to the Republican policy of respecting individual enterprise, he does not yet go so far as to place an embargo on the sale of arms by private firms to foreign powers.

The large stock of surplus rifles in the possession of the War Department has at various times since the Armistice been sought by various foreign nations. When, a few months ago one of the Balkan nations sounded American officials to ascertain whether the United States would sell its rifles, President Harding directed that the negotiating agents be informed that none of these guns was for sale.

In addition to writing to the Secretary of War, asking him to make sure that none of the American surplus equipment be employed to encourage warfare in any part of the world, President Harding has written to the Navy Department also, urging its co-operation in adhering to this policy.

Paderewski Earns $460,000 In One American Season

"For the first time since music became a fine art, three centuries ago, it has paid to be the foremost living musician," writes Henry T. Finck, music critic of the New York Evening Post. "Ignace Jan Paderewski has earned since last November an average of $7,000 for each of sixty-six piano recitals, a total of over $460,000, of this sum some $9,- was taken in at Paderewski's third recital this reason in New York. Hundreds more wanted tickets, and an additional thousand could have been added to the account if the pianist had been willing to have a few hundred persons share the stage with him. But he doesn't like that sort of thing, and when you don't like a thing a thousand or so doesn't count.

"Never before have I seen Carnegie Hall so packed; some of the boxes, intended for four, held eight. And this vast audience from parquet to ceiling when the premier pianist came on the stage stood to show him the respect due to genius of such exalted kind."

Chinese Is Held On Counterfeit Banknote Charge

Charged with aiding and abetting in the issuing of 500 counterfeit $5 bank notes, imitations of notes of the Bank of Agriculture and Commerce, a shopkeeper arrested in the Settlement but resident in Chinese territory was ordered turned over to the Chinese authorities by the Mixed Court yesterday.

Detective Sub-Inspector Yorke stated that the defendant was arrested in a printing shop at 29 Shantung Road and that there was evidence that he had purchased a large number of the bogus notes. The Chinese police, he stated, have already arrested two others in connection with the fraud.

The accused denied that he had anything to do with the issue or circulation of the notes.

120 SLAIN BY HONAN BANDITS

Kaifeng, June 26.—A large gang of bandits raided Shikang last night. Over 1,000 houses were pillaged and burned by the desperadoes.

The bandits are said to have killed over 120 Chinese, largely aged people and children, in cold blood, for their inability to march off with the gang. The exact number of captives held has not yet been ascertained. A heavy death-toll is reported of persons burned to death.

The troops were reluctant to respond to the call of alarm raised by the local Peasants' Mutual Defence Union. They arrived on the scene only to find the conflagation raging and after the brigands had already decamped.

American Women Barefoot At Shrine

Rangoon, May 22.—The spectacle of wealthy American women removing their silk stockings in the streets of an Oriental city has attracted much attention in Rangoon during recent weeks.

The occasion for these crowd-drawing incidents is a rule, enforced since the Fall of 1920, prohibiting footwear upon the platform of Shwe Dragon pagoda, one of the most important Buddhist shrines in Asia.

Although the Burmas themselves have always removed their footwear before ascending the pagoda steps, until recent years Europeans have been allowed to visit the pagoda without taking off their shoes.

The present ruling, made in connection with the nationalist movement, requires the removal of stockings as well as shoes.

Due to the after-war revival of the tourist trade, about 1,250 American travelers have visited Rangoon during the last few weeks, and another shipload is expected before the end of the season. Many of these are willing to climb the pagoda hill bare foot rather than to go away without seeing the Shwe Dragon at close range.

The Shwe Dragon, with its great spire of plastered gold flashing in the sunlight, is the first object the traveler sees as he approaches Rangoon; it is the last of the city he looks upon when the steamer is bearing him away. For centuries it has been an object of veneration to thousands of pilgrims.

Swindlers In London Thrive On Victims

London, June 21.—Swindling has taken the place of violence as the most prevalent type of crime, says Sir Leonard Dunning, Inspector of Constabulary for England.

"Crimes of violence have steadily decreased for years" says Sir Leonard in a report, "Modern crime is civilised and educated because the criminal of today knows that it is far safer and more profitable to swindle hundreds than to rob one by knocking him in the head."

It has been stated that there are hundreds of professional criminals in England whom the police are powerless to arrest. Many of these people derive very large incomes by trading upon the credulity of a certain section of wealthy people. In the vast majority of cases the criminals are never prosecuted either because of the difficulty of proving the fraud against them or because the people victimized do not want publicity.

The London spring social season is the "open sesame" for the English "Raffles," and they lose no opportunity of adding to their incomes through defrauding the wealthy. One of the most popular means during the last few years has been for the criminal to gain entrance to various social affairs and make it a point of being seen in the company of well-known people. Then they proceed to organise entertainments, beg donations for hospitals, and by other means to raise large sums supposedly for the benefit of war veterans, but which never get beyond the pocket of the organizer. The police claim to have knowledge of several hundreds of such schemes but they are unable to act as the victims refuse to appear in police court.

Earth's Magnetic Force Decreasing

The earth's magnetic force is decreasing at a rate that will eventually make ship's magnetic compasses useless, according to the director of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism at Carnegie Institute, Washington, who, since 1895 has been measuring the decrease occuring.

The first rate of decrease noted was one two thousandth. In the last few years the rate has increased to one thousandth. This is attributed to "self-inductance" of the earth's magnetic field.

The magnetic force of the earth may cease diminishing, it may even increase. Unless such a change occurs, however, magnetic compasses will, in a certain time, be useless. Even now there are places in the polar regions where compass movement is slow and unreliable. In such regions navigators have to resort to the gyroscopic compass, a far more eleborate and expensive device.

Explaining An Ear Of Corn

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"I am much interested in all your articles and would like to ask if there is any explanation of the following (freak perfection) fact in nature: We see four, five, and even six and seven, leaf clover stems and abnormal growths in any (nearly) plant, grain, or vegetable, except just one, viz. corn. There has never been an ear of corn found with an odd number of rows of kernels of corn. The rows are always an even number. Can this be explained? I remember when a small boy of hunting through my father's corn crib, for hours at a time, for the coveted odd-rowed ear of corn, for which our teacher had offered a prize. Needless to say the prize was never won.—C. B. Wilcox, Lawrence, Mich."

Everybody must feel an interest in so distinctively an American plant as corn, or Indian corn, the glory of our late Summer and Autumn fields. It is the most picturesque of cultivated food plants. Its striking aspect recalls its first cultivators, the American Indians, with their lithe forms and waving plumes.

What Mr. Wilcox says of the inevitability of an even number of rows of kernels on the ears, accords with what I myself always heard when I was, like him, a boy in a "corn country." I certainly never saw an ear of corn with an odd number of rows, although in other respects the ears are variable, as in size, color of kernel, etc. Once in a while, for instance, a few red kernels can be found scattered among the gold-color kind, and everybody has heard of the rare red ears to the finding of which Indian children, as well as white ones among the early settlers, attached so much sentimental importance.

If corn has never developed a variation from the rule of even rows it is probably because a change would not afford any advantage to the plant, and so there has been no tendency toward the production and preservation of a variety of that kind. Looking over a list of seven of the most important cultivated varieties, I do not find among them any example of ears with odd-rowed kernels. The number of rows, however, varies from sixteen up to twenty-four.

Once in a while a six-fingered, six-toed human appears, but although the peculiarity seems occasionally to recur among descendants, yet one might safely at any time bet against the finding of a six-fingered person in any crowd, or in any particular town or city.

Six fingers do not give any perceptible advantage to their possessor, and may possibly be a disadvantage, so that here, as in the case of corn kernels, the needed influences toward the preservation of a variation do not exist. As to the statement that an odd-rowed corn-ear never was found, I can neither confirm nor deny it.

Everybody may not know that corn belongs to the grass family, and there is some mystery about its origin. There seems to be no doubt that it was first found on the American Continent. But it had been cultivated for a long time by the Indians of both North and South America, before the white man came, and the Indians could not tell from what wild form it had been developed by their ancestors.

Corn is monoecious, i.e., the same individual plants bear both male and female blossoms. The arrangement of these blossoms is strikingly interesting. The male flowers are collected in the high, tossing, tasseled head of the plant, and the female ones below on the sides of the stalk in [illegible] ultimately becoming the ears with their kernels, which are the seeds, and at the same time the fruits of the plant.

The ears are singularly adorned at their outer ends with long silky tresses, pushing out of the enveloping leafy spathes. These beautiful tresses, green turning to gold, are the pistils of the female flowers. The arrangement of the two-flower sexes is such as to facilitate the distribution of the pollen to the pistils by the wind, and light showers of it can be seen falling on a breezy day, while the waving tresses, often lifted twelve or fifteen feet in the air, sway gracefully to and fro. Truly its corn plant is something for America to show with pride. Though long ago introduced into Europe, it never looks so magnificent there as on its native soil.

PEKING NOTES

Peking, June 24.—The regulations governing the issue of circulating notes were approved by the Cabinet yesterday. Details will be gazetted in a few days.

"More anti-birthday greetings!" exclaimed the author, as the postman dropped some bulky packages through the letter box on the front door.

"What do you mean by 'anti-birthday greetings'?" asked his friend, who was visiting him.

"Why," replied the author, sadly, "they are many unhappy returns!"

Shanghai-Nanking Railway Lowers Rates For Silk

Owing to the depreciation in the silk market, the Shanghai-Nanking Railway Administration has granted the application of the silk merchants to abrogate the five percent extra freight which was hitherto imposed over and above the regular rate for the transportation of silks.

The new schedule showing the special rates for the transportation of silks and cocoons between Nanking and Wusieh is as follows:—

40	tons	$88
25-30	tons	$75
21	tons	$53
15	tons	$38

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

Spot and forward bar silver were each unchanged in London yesterday. The New York price was also unchanged and the London-New York cross rate declined to 460⅞. The only changes in our official quotations here today were a rise in the Franc rate to 1155 and a drop in the Rupee rate to 227.

Our market here today was firm at the opening but turned completely around and became very weak in the course of the morning. At the opening there were sellers of Sterling at 3-1¼ for June delivery, 3-1-1-16 for July and 3-0-15-16 for August.

There were sellers of Gold Dollars at 71½ for June delivery, 71⅜ for July and 71¼ for August. A fair amount of business was done at these rates but speculators who heretofore had been inclined to sell, became strong buyers and the market quickly eased off and closed with no sellers of Sterling at better than 3/1 for June delivery, 3/0¾ for July and 3-0⅝ August.

There were no sellers of Gold Dollars at the close at better than 71¼ for June, 70⅞ for July and 70¾ August. There were sellers of Yen at 68⅞ for June 69 for July and 69¼ August. Banks were quoting 72¾ for Gold Dollar bills for near delivery and 72½ ofr forward. They were quoting 3-1¾ for Sterling bills for near delivery and 3-1½ for forward.

There were no buyers of Franc bills under 1190. China both bought and sold silver in London yesterday and the market there is reported as steady. New York report their market as dull and steady.

Hankow Market

The Hankow British Chamber of Commerce write as follows in their weekly circular dated Hankow, June 20:

Bar Silver 31¾ ready 31⅞ forward on June 13, remained steady all the week and closed at 32 ready 31⅞ forward. New York/London Cross Rate remained steady at 461¼ until the June 19 when it went up to 462⅛ on the 20th to 462½. T.T. rose from 3/2⅝ to 3/2⅝ on the 16th at which rate it remained steady until the 20th forenoon when it dropped to 3/2⅝. 4 m-s which were placed earlier in the week at 3/2½ for near delivery could be placed at 3/3¼ at the close. Market rates: Shanghai taels 96.9875. Local currency $70.075. Native interest 9 percent.

Imports.—Piece Goods: Market dull since the festival and clearances poor.

Yarn:/Nothing doing. Clearances fair.

Exports.—The position as reported last week is unchanged. Owing to the more acute political situation on the Continent, European buyers are less disposed to operate rendering business very difficult. Wood oil is now quoted at Tls. 33.00 put no business passing. Small purchases of China grass are reported.

Analysis of exports for week ending June 15:

"Health Better than it has been for Years."

Our portrait is of Mrs. WOODROW, of 56, Robinson Road, Tooting, London, England, whose husband writes:

"My wife has suffered very badly for the past four or five years with Piles, being unable to sleep at night or get any relief during the day. She tried several advertised remedies, none of which did her any good. Some three weeks ago she thought she would try 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and before she had taken half a bottle she was better, and by the time she had finished the second bottle she was quite cured. She can now sleep well, eat well, and get about her work, and her general health is better than it has been for years." In a further letter some eight months later Mr. Woodrow writes: "I am pleased to say that since my wife's cure of Piles in September, 1918, there has been no sign of return of the trouble."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout. Pleasant to take and free from anything injurious. Of all Dealers. Ask for and see you get

The Rockefeller Foundation In China

"FOR all purposes the China Medical Board of the Rockefeller Foundation has since its organisation disbursed $13,-282,504 (gold)," says President George E. Vincent in his annual review of the work of the Foundation for 1922. Dr. Vincent then goes on to make this important statement, which we hope will be taken to heart by the Chinese civic and commercial bodies that are now trying to drag their country out of the morass of misrule into which it has strayed:

"The Foundation has so far almost wholly refrained from undertaking work in preventive medicine in China. * * * The absence of stable and efficient central and provincial governments; popular ignorance of modern medicine; peculiar biological, social, and economic conditions; and the lack of trained personnel, make public health progress at present extremely difficult. The problem is not, however, being ignored. A member of the staff of the International Health Board is attached to the Peking Union Medical College, where he gives instruction to undergraduates in hygiene and public health, administers the health service of the College, conducts special courses in school hygiene, and spends part of his time in the field studying health conditions. With the gradual growth of Western medicine in China, progress in public health may be expected."

A famous institution which is doing a noble work all over the world, which already has given over thirteen million gold dollars for the promotion of the health and well-being of the people of China thus speaks its mind. All it asks, in order to do still more, is the co-operation of a stable and efficient government, central and provincial.

Dr. Vincent's remarks on the medical work in China are of utmost interest. He says:

"To one medical school—the Peking Union Medical College—the Rockefeller Foundation through the China Medical Board sustains a unique relation. This institution, reconstructed upon foundations laid by a group of missionary societies in 1906, and administered by its own Board of Trustees, is entirely supported by the Foundation. This medical center is the chief feature of a program by which the China Medical Board seeks to promote scientific medicine in China.

The important developments during 1922 were connected with pre-medical education. Offers were made two Chinese institutions, Southeastern University, Nanking, and Nankai College, Tientsin, and to the missionary university in Peking, to contribute toward science laboratories and equipment, to lend visiting professors, to grant fellowships for further training of Chinese teachers and to add to maintenance funds.

"Hospitals well equipped, adequately staffed, and advantageously located are essential to the introduction of modern medicine in China. Many missionary hospitals and a few under Chinese control are serving the cause not only by caring for patients, but by raising the professional and ethical standards of Chinese practitioners, and by educating the Chinese public in the meaning of scientific medicine. To come into closer and more sympathetic relations with the public, the Peking Union Medical College has recently appointed a co-operating committee of prominent Chinese to aid in interpreting the College to the community. * * * In 1922 the Board aided directly 19 hospitals, of which one was Chinese. Since 1915 gifts totaling $659,487 have been made to 32 different hospitals. For all purposes the China Medical Board has since its organisation disbursed $13,292,504. * * *"

A summary of the first part of Dr. Vincent's review shows that during the year 1922 the Rockefeller Foundation:

Endowed chairs of medicine and of surgery in Hongkong University;

Pledged $1,125,000 toward new buildings for the College of Medicine of the State University of Iowa;

Contributed to the current maintenance of two medical schools in Canada;

Completed the buildings, strengthened the faculty, and wholly financed the Peking Union Medical College;

Agreed to appropriate $300,000 toward laboratories and premedical teaching in two Chinese institutions and in one missionary university in Peking;

Helped 19 hospitals in China to increase their efficiency in the care of patients and in the further training of doctors and nurses;

Resurveyed centers of hookworm infection in four Southern States, and carried on control work in 21 foreign governmental areas;

Took part in promoting full-time health service in 163 counties in 18 states of the United States, and in several counties in Brazil;

Agreed to support for five years the disease-reporting service and for three years the international exchange of health personnel program of the Health Section of the League of Nations;

Provided fellowships in public health, medicine, nursing, chemistry, and physics to 237 advanced students from 23 countries;

The Insulin Cure For Diabetes

The following article on the means of treatment of diabetes by means of insulin was written by Dr. Morris Fishbein, Assistant to the Editor of the American Medical Association's Journal.

An exclusive dispatch to THE CHINA PRESS yesterday announced that after nine months's experimentation it had been proven insulin was a positive cure.

BY MORRIS FISHBEIN, M. D.
Assistant to the Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association; Associate Editor, Hygeia.

In November, 1920, Dr. F. G. Banting, then an assistant in the Physiology Department of Western University, London, Ontario, conceived the experiment which finally resulted in the production of insulin. Thus culminated a series of medical researches, carried out through hundreds of years in an endeavor to control a disease—diabetes.

Credit is given to an English physician, Thomas Willis, for having discoverd in 1674 that the fluid excreted in diabetes is sweet, and a hundred years later other English physicians showed this sweetness was due to its sugar content. From that time until 1889, few researches of importance were made in this disease, but in that year, Mering and Minkowski, foreign investigators, found that complete removal of the pancreas from a healthy dog would result in severe and fatal diabetes.

THE PANCREAS IS A GLAND

The pancreas is a gland which lies near to the stomach, the gallbladder and the upper part of the intestines. In stockyards and packing houses, it is commonly called "liver sweetbreads," thus distinguishing it from the true sweetbreads or thymus gland, which are commonly called "heart sweetbreads."

It has been the practice of investigators to determine the functions of glands by removing them from the bodies of animals and then observing the animals to see what changes take place in their physical condition. When the foreign physiologists discovered the results which followed the removal of the pancreas, the most important step had been taken to determine the cause of a most fatal disease.

A magazine article which Dr. Banting was reading and which led him to his crucial experiment dealt with the relation of the islands or islets of Langerhans to diabetes. Students of microscopic anatomy had discovered that the pancreas is composed of two types of tissue, one of glandular tissue which secrets a digestive fluid known as trypsin, and the other characterised by the fact that its cells are distinct from the remainder of the pancreas. These are the islands of Langerhans, so called from the name of the investigator who first described them.

After his description many earnest scientists endeavored to determine the function of these islands, and in 1886 an anatomist suggested that they had a secretion separate from that of the remaining portion of the pancreas. Since such a secretion was not found to come from the ducts or tubes which regularly conveyed the external secretion, trypsin, it would be known as an internal secretion. The latter term signifies that the secretion is poured by the pancreas into the blood stream and is not poured directly into some cavity, as trypsin, for example, is poured into the intestine.

These experiments continued and it was discovered that the islets were the structures of chief importance in relation to diabetes. The manner of this discovery is fascinating from the standpoint of scientific detail.

For example, it rested on microscopic observation of portions of the pancreas taken from the bodies of persons who had died from this disease. It rested on experiments in which portions of the pancreas were removed from animals and the remainder subjected, after certain periods, to special study. In 1917, a Japanese, Kamimura, traced the changes in the tissue of the pancreas, after tying off its ducts, and found that the islets remained normal and that the animal would not excrete sugar in its fluid as long as these islets remained intact.

TEST POWER OF EXTRACTS

Another method which scientists use to determine the effects of any organ's action upon the body is to inject extracts of the organ into human beings and determine if and how such extracts produce undesirable changes. This is the basis of the use of glandular preparations which have proved of value and, unfortunately, of many other glandular preparations the value of which is not established.

For example, it is known that in the condition called cretinism, which produces idiots and dwarfs, there is a deficiency of the thyroid gland secretion. In this condition provision of thyroid gland substance is beneficial in arresting progress of the disease and permitting normal development.

Many physicians attempted to treat diabetes by administering extracts of the pancreas to diabetic patients. The results were invariably of such character as to discourage use of the product. In view of the fact that Banting has been successful in producing an extract, which does yield satisfactory results, it may be well to credit those other pioneer investigators, Minkowski, Murlin, Kleiner and Zueller, for their attempts. In every case the experiments failed for reasons which today might not have obtained.

Banting was reading a resume of the changes which occur in the tissues of the pancreas following the tying off of the ducts. Trypsin, a digestive fluid, is backed up into the gland and there results a degeneration in the glandular tissue, but, the islet tissue does not degenerate.

Since all previous experiments tended to show the islet tissue a significant factor in relation to diabetes, it occurred to Banting that this method could be utilised to obtain an extract which would consist almost wholly of islets. Obviously such an extract would be far more potent in its content of the active principle responsible for diabetes than would extracts of the entire gland.

Having elaborated this hypothesis, the next step of the investigator was to present it to Prof. J. J. Macleod, head of the physiological laboratory of the University of Toronto, who, in May, 1921, provided laboratory facilities and support for the experimental work.

MAKE TESTS ON DOGS

The first experiment was to tie up the ducts of the pancreas in dogs and allow sufficient time for degenerative changes to occur. The next step was to operate on other dogs, removing the pancreas and permitting development of diabetes. Then the first animals were painlessly chloroformed and the pancreatic tissue following degeneration was hastily removed, sliced, ground in a mortar, extracted in that solution and the mixture filtered. The fluid passing through the filter, having been raised to body temperature, was injected into the veins of the diabetic dogs. When a normal dog was injected with this extract there resulted a lowering in the percentage of sugar in the blood. When a diabetic dog was injected with this solution there was a lowering of the percentage of sugar in the blood and a lowering of the amount of sugar excreted in its fluids.

The external secretion of the pancreas, trypsin, or some other constituent, destroys the active principle of the internal secretion, presumably coming from the islets, when attempts are made to make extracts out of the whole gland.

Of course it would not be possible to prepare any considerable amount of an extract if the method followed in the first experiment had to be depended on for this purpose, i.e., operation on an animal, delay until degeneration occurs, and subsequent extracting of the glandular re-

FOR PEOPLE WHO ARE FEELING OLD

Old age comes early to those whose blood is thin and weak. When the system becomes run down the shoulders begin to droop, the step loses its elasticity, the eye its sparkle and the skin its color. In addition to these external changes there is an almost unceasing distress consisting of indigestion, headaches, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness and dizzy spells.

Good blood and plenty of it is the secret of health and vigor. If you want to take years from your appearance and restore your body to health begin treatment with the blood builder and nerve tonic which Mrs. Elizabeth Morton, of No. 82 Shirley street, Roxbury, Boston, Mass., endorses so highly.

"I became badly run down," says Mrs. Morton, "and lost so much weight and strength that I looked and felt old. My color was very poor and I didn't have any energy. I grew melancholy and worried so much that I could not sleep well. The effort of climbing stairs exhausted me and left me panting for breath. I generally had a severe headache when I awoke. There were pains across my back and shoulders.

"A cousin who had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with a great deal of benefit was so sure that the pills would help me that I began to take them. My appetite improved almost at once and I began to gain weight. I took them for three months and have completely regained my health and feel like a new and younger person. I shall never be without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills again for I have great faith in them as a blood builder."

Your own druggist sells the world-famous Blood and Nerve restorative, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or sent, post free, 1 bottle for $1.50, 6 bottles $8, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai. Write today for the booklet "The Way To Be Well." It is free.

The Insulin Cure For Diabetes

vestigators therefore decided to This decision was based on some previous work by Prof. Carlson of the University of Chicago, and other physiologists, who had shown the pancreas, in such animals, may be rich in the internal secretion and yet not subject to the destructive influence of the external secretion.

It was found that extracts in salt solution of the pancreas of unborn calves in the fifth month of gestation, would have the same effects as did the degenerated pancreas prepared in the first experiment.

LENGTHEN LIFE FIVE-FOLD

A dog whose pancreas had been surgically removed, and which was therefore subject to diabetes, was kept alive with such an extract for seventy days whereas previously it had been shown by Dr. F. M. Allen, another investigator, that such a dog does not live beyond fourteen days.

It was now clear that a substance was present within the pancreas, quite certainly chiefly in the islet tissue of the pancreas, which, when injected, would supply some substance not present in diabetics, and therefore capable of sustaining life and adjusting the use of sugar by the body.

The next step was to get this substance out of the pancreas of the adult animal. In the cow or ox the pancreas weighs about a pound, in the sheep or hog it is proportionately smaller, and slaughter houses in this country can supply liberal quantities.

The researches of Banting and his coworker Best, carried on under the guidance of Prof. Macleod, were now still further extended with the assistance of Prof. J. B. Collip of the department of pathological chemistry in the University of Toronto.

His chief contribution to the work was a method of extracting the ground pancreas, with alcohol, over and over again, thus circumventing the action of the lysin and removing excess quantities of albuminous substances which form the basis of animal tissues and which may cause severe reactions when injected into the human body.

His efforts were successful, a suitable method was devised, and it was possible to deliver to the physicians who were to test the product on human beings an extract practically free from proteins, from unnecessary minerals and salts, and capable of being injected without producing either severe symptoms at the point of injection or the previously described general reactions which follow the injection of albuminous or protein substances.

There still remained to be determined a very important question: the matter of standardisation and dosage. How important this really is will be seen in the following paragraph.

STANDARDISATION

The scientific physician of today, thoroughly trained in physiology and pharmacology, employs many potent drugs and remedies. How many persons who receive a life saving dose of digitalis when suffering from diseases of the heart, of diphtheria antitoxin when strangling with the accumulation of membrane in the throat, or of thymol or oil of chenopodium when suffering with the lassitude and anemia of hookworm infestation, stop to wonder how scientists arrive at the proper quantity of the remedy to be administered? And yet it is absolutely a matter of life or death! To determine these things by trial and error on the human being would be a most uneconomical and inhumane process.

The distinguishing sign of diabetes is the presence of sugar in the excreted fluids. Scientists have found the amount of sugar in this fluid varies according to variable factors, but is quite definitely related to a much more constant measurement, the amount of sugar in the circulating blood.

Concentration of sugar in the blood of normal persons varies between 0.08 percent and 0.12 percent. In diabetes concentration of the sugar content of the blood is definitely increased, ranging from 0.14 percent to 0.5 percent.

Now the primary effect of the extract made from the islets of the pancreas, and called insulin from the word insula, meaning island, is a reduction of the blood sugar.

When a rabbit which has gone without food for about sixteen hours is injected with a large dose of insulin it becomes excitable, and later passes into a form of drowsiness characterised as coma. Its breathing may be rapid and its muscular excitability so intense that clapping of the hands or stamping the floor will throw it into convulsive movements.

Already the world owes a tremendous debt to scientific experimentation on the lower animals: now insulin has been added to the long list, including diphtheria antitoxin, arsphenamin in syphills, vaccines against typhoid in man, serums against meningitis and hog cholera, vaccine against hydrophobia, safety against deadly gases in mines, and hundreds of other life-protecting and life-saving measures.

Let us see what happened when insulin was used on human beings.

FIRST CLINICAL TRIALS

Heretofore the most serious form of diabetes has been that which occurs in children. One observer reported that of forty-six children whom he saw suffering with diabetes 50 percent died within three months. Yet among the earliest patients seen by the Toronto investigators was a boy, aged sixteen years, who had lost forty pounds during three years of steady decline and who gained thirty-five pounds under the administration of this drug within three months.

A few months ago the physicians of the Toronto hospital reported their results in the first fifty cases. The most striking results by far were seen in children and this no doubt is due to the fact that these younger patients retain sufficient of the essential tissues of the pancreas to receive most benefit from the new remedy.

The results of the extract, when properly administered, are striking. In a few days the sugar disappears from the excreted fluid, the chemical substances in the excreted fluid, which indicate a disturbance of the proper assimilation of sugars also are absent; hunger is replaced by appetite, the thirst is lessened, the weight frequently increases and that pleasant state of the body known as physical vigor is restored.

FUTUER OF INSULIN

In diabetic coma the discoverers of insulin consider it to be specific. In the diabetes of children, insulin saves life. In patients in whom diabetes is associated with infections such as tuberculosis, or in whom surgical operation is required, insulin is invaluable. And for the vast majority of diabetics whose comfort and whose diet has heretofore been limited, insulin offers opportunity for a more normal existence. It is not a cure for such diabetics, but it is a remedy which, wisely administered, in relation to a proper adjustment of the quantity and quality of food, will remove from these persons a menace which has heretofore threatened them constantly.

When certain other active glandular principles were first isolated, modern chemistry was called on in the battle against disease and methods were developed for creating the substances in the laboratory without the use of the animal tissue. Already chemists are at work on the problem of producing insulin synthetically. The future may witness even greater progress as the result of these studies.

Across The Breakfast Table

By Mr. And Mrs. W. L. George

Naming The Child

Mr. George: I wonder what name Dulcie is going to give her baby. It's quite important to have a good name in life. She might call the child Ethelbertha. That's a striking name, or Simona. Or Ghulida. Think of it darling, if later on that child becomes a concert singer, or goes on the stage, how useful it will be. Ethelbertha Jones, can't you see it on the posters? Also it will get the child noticed socially and give young men something personal to get hold of and to talk of. A striking name is an advertisement, for as you know advertisers always seek attractive names for their goods.

Mrs. George (severely): Children ought not to be looked upon as advertising property. Highfalutin names only make trouble for the child and make it ridiculous at school. They make it miserable. Besides, those names are out of fashion; nowadays all the prettiest and most popular names for girls are the old names like Barbara, Mary, Anne, Jane. It's only the poor girls of my generation who've got appalling names to live down.

Mr. George: On second thoughts I agree with you, for it's very difficult to fit the name to the person. For instance, suppose Dulcie were to call her baby Belle, and twenty years later Belle had a complexion like a pie and wore spectacles! Then there's Hope. She might call her baby Hope and the child might grow up a perfect picture of melancholia. And there's worse than that: during the war girls were christened Pershing and Foch; soon one of them will hear the words "Foch, I love you." This gives me an idea: nobody ought to be named until they reach the age of twenty-one; until then we ought to have a number, and at twenty-one our name could be made the punishment to fit the crime of our existence.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market." J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result." F. GERALD BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere." J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble." C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood." CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children." J. A. BOARMAN, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

Bloodhound's Trail Cited In Murder Case Evidence

Details of how a bloodhound aided in the discovery of the body of Arjan Singh, former police cook, were given at the British Police Court yesterday when two Indians, Warlan Singh and Katara Singh, were charged with the murder.

The case is being heard by Mr. D. R. Cooke and Mr. Eardley Maitland appeared to prosecute, while Mr. J. G. Priestwood appeared for the defense.

Outlining the case for the prosecution, Mr. Maitland stated that Arjan Singh was reported missing on April 26. A search was made by the police in Jessfield and back of No. 59 Yu Yuen Road, where the deceased was last reported seen alive. On May 1 a pool of blood was found in a field nearby, where there were signs of a struggle. An analyst declared this blood could not possibly have been human, but on May 2 a bloodhound belonging to Mr. M. O. Springfield, Assistant Commissioner of Police, was taken to the scene and went from the spot where the blood was found to the spot in a nearby creek where the body was subsequently discovered on June 12.

The case against Katara Singh, Mr. Maitland said, was based on a statement made by him actually admitting that he had arranged for Arjan Singh to be killed by Warian Singh. A witness would tell the Court how he had notified the police and would also produce letters he had written.

BOUGHT DRINKS

The evidence would show that the deceased was in company of Warian Singh when seen last. They were in a shop and Warian Singh bought some drinks. Then they went to the house of Warian Singh who promised to take the man to Mr. Benbow Rowe's house where he said he had found employment for the deceased who was later seen at 59 Yu Yuen Road drunk, accompanied by Warian Singh. Two and a half hours later Warian Singh returned alone and said that he was attacked by Chinese.

Dr. E. L. Marsh stated that the evidences of injury were fractures of the skull. There were four separate and extensive fractures. Two had penetrated deeply into the brain and looked as if they had been caused by some sharp pointed instrument. These fractures were sufficient, in his opinion, to have caused death. The blows could not have been self inflicted. A heavy walking stick, such as was produced by the prosecution could have caused the fracture.

Dr. Marsh went on to say that, having received such wounds, the deceased would have died within half of a hour.

CROSS-EXAMINES DOCTOR

Cross-examined by Mr. Priestwood the witness said that he did not think that the body was removed when he saw it. It was floating in about two and a half feet of water. There was no traffic on the creek. The witness could not say definitely how long the body was dead. It would be for over four weeks. He could say that the injuries occured during the life. It was impossible that the injuries could have been inflicted by a passing boat or an anchor.

The doctor said that when he saw the body it was tied with a rope at the waist. A stone was attached to it. The man was fully dressed with exception of his boots and turban.

Zau Ah-san, No. 70 Chinese Detective Bubbling Well Police Station said that he went with Inspectors Prosser and Gibson to 59 Yuyuen Road.

FOUND POOL OF BLOOD

Mr. Maitland: And what did you see when you got there? I saw a pool of blood in the wheat field. What were you looking for? I was instructed by foreign detectives to go and find out whether any corpses were found.

You were looking for the body of an Indian? Yes. Arjan Singh. On June 12 at 5:30 p.m., I found a clothed corpse in the creek or "er-pah," a back creek behind Yu Yuen Road. Inspector MacDermott and Gibson also went there. The body was left in the water until next morning when it was taken out of the water. Ropes were tied to the two legs and three stones were on the body. The four coolies took the body out of the water.

Assistant Police Commissioner M. O. Springfield was then called and said that May 2 he went to Yu Yuen Road with Inspector Gibson He had his blood-hound with him. He met Inspector Gibson outside a small path leading to the south of 59 Yu Yuen Road They went into country and Inspector Gibson showed the witness a place where the wheat was beaten down and the ground was pressed flat. There was a sort of depression in one place. The dog was with him and he encouraged the dog to smell the blood.

TELLS DOG'S MOVEMENTS

Mr. M. O. Springfield, described the movements of his bloodhound when the animal was taken to the patch of blood near the creek in which the body of the deceased was discovered. He said that he allowed the dog to run loose. After attempts in various directions the hound sprang into the stream from a plank, keeping in the same position for about 20 yards. It ran several times Eastward along the country path, and after reaching the bridge it turned back again. It did not swim over the body while in the creek Witness said that it was most probable that the scent was under the water when the hound came to a certain spot. When in the creek the hound bayed strongly and appeared very excited.

Mr. Priestwood objected to the evidence of the witness going on record, and the Magistrate said he would make a note of same, and would leave it to the higher court to decide on the movements of the bloodhound.

On the question as to the right of Mr. Priestwood to cross-examine after he had objected to the witness' evidence going in, the Magistrate said that Mr. Priestwood could cross-examine except on the movements of the dog.

In cross-examination, Mr. Springfield said that the patch of blood was about 9 to 12 inches in width, and from the patch to the nearest Chinese house the distance would be about 60 yards. The creek was quite a deep one, being in the deepest part about 13 to 14 feet from the top of the bank to the bottom. There was a current flowing West at the time the hound was hunting. The creek joined up to the Fahwah Village creek and eventually to the Soochow Creek. The creek was searched by means of grappling poles.

The hearing was adjourned till Monday morning.

Cultivation Of Oranges In Singapore Success

Mr. F. G. Spring writing in the Malayan Agricultural Journal for April says:—

It is generally considered that the Malay Peninsula is not suitable for the growing of oranges. The orange is frequently cultivated, particularly by Chinese, but the varieties are not of good quality; they are of the green type which do not turn yellow and are, as a rule, too acid for dessert purposes being more suitable for the making cooling drinks. Fruit culture until quite recently has received little or no attention as regards propagation, tillage, manuring, pruning, pests and diseases; and it is too much to expect that any crop will improve under neglected conditions.

A few residents, however, have taken a keen interest in the cultivation of fruit trees and special mention might be made of Mr. Tan Chye Siam of 60-2, Jervois Road, Singapore, as having had great success in the growing of oranges. The writer visited his orchard recently and was impressed with the results obtained Seven years ago Mr. Tan Chye Siam commenced propagating the trees by marcottage from oranges grown in Singapore. The parent trees are of the ordinary type grown in this country but precaution was taken to select the best yielders and healthiest trees for marcotting purposes. The improvement of the stock is due to a number of factos. The mother plants were well cared for and the land maintained in good state of tilth. Lalang and other noxious weeds were eradicated and the ground tilled periodically. The trees, therefore, were more suitable for propagation purposes than those growing under neglected conditions. The marcotted plants come into bearing in about three years; this is very much shorter period than that taken by seedlings to produce fruit; soil conditions, however, appear to have considerable influence.

The oranges now obtained are very different to those of the original stock. They are of the yellow type and, in size, are about equal to that of the best imported varieties. The flavour is good although perhaps not up to the standard of the first class orange but considering the progress made in so short a time it is not improbable that ultimately the flavour will compare favourably with fruits grown in other countries The oranges are very juicy and contain a small number of seeds. The plants are at present yielding an average of 200 catties of oranges per tree. There is a ready market for them and it is to be hoped that the industry may develop to such an extent as to render the importation of oranges unnecessary. The writer does not wish to be too optimistic as to the future of the crop but the results obtained in this orchard in Singapore are sufficiently promising to warrant the cultivation on a large scale.

Valuab'e Research In Nitrate Production

The importance of the possibility of producing nitrates from the air and of increasing the efficiency of the internal combustion engine is such that the contribution to the subject made recently by Professor Bone and his colleagues at the Royal Society will be received with very keen interest. They have been studying the conditions under which certain gases explode at such enormods pressures as a thousand atmospheres, or what would be exerted by a column of quicksilver standing well over half a mile high. and have obtained some new and remarkable results.

When hydrogen is mixed with oxygen and exploded to form water the highest pressure is reached at a certain interval of time, and the mixture cools off after another interval of time. If these gases are mixed with other gasses, so as to dilute them, such as oxygen, argon, or nitrogen, the results obtained are similar; the delay caused is only what would be expected by the fact that they are diluted.

When the attempt is made to explode carbon monoxide and oxygen to form carbon dioxide in the presence of a little hydrogen, similar time values are obtained, but if the hitherto supposedly inert gas nitrogen is added to the mixture, the moment of maximum pressure of explosion is very greatly delayed, the exploded gases cool very much more slowly, and some nitric acid is formed. If hydrogen is present in small quantities the explosion takes place in a way comparable with that of oxygen and hydrogen. If excess of carbon monoxide or oxygen, or of argon, is used, the explosion occurs on conditions comparable with those of hydrogen.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

In the course of the researches of the same series as the present one, Mr. Haywood lost his life through an explosion of the apparatus. but the theoretical results described show that his life was not uselessly thrown away.

Results that have immediate practical application have been obtained in connection with the nitrate industry. for the lesson has been learnt that the nitrates, so invaluable to agriculture as they are to the manufacture of explosives, can be obtained by small scale production. Information, too, of considerable value has been obtained for those studying the theory of the internal combustion engine.

Professor Bone suggests as an explanation of his observations that the nitrogen molecule resounds (like a tuning fork) to the carbon monixide during the explosion, and so delays its rapidly reaching its maximum effect, but when this has been attained it delays the cooling of the gas because it then releases the energy it has absorbed.
